I. Who uses it? Fantasy hockey fans II. Why does he use? Try to accomplish?
   a. Check fantasy hockey statistics - how a player is doing on a given day, cumulatively, and statistics
   b. Play fantasy hockey III. What functions does your software provide to the user that help him achieve his goals?
   a. Access statistics on a desired player (query / search the database)
   b. Check leading players in a desired category (i.e. goals, assists, etc)
   c. Check performance of players on a team by team basis
   d. Draft teams/create fantasy leagues IV. How does he use it? What steps does he go through in order to achieve his goal? What are the workflows he progresses through when using it?
   a. Database/query
      i. Input a Conference/player name, and how he wants to sort and/or refine his search ii. This should be entered into the command
   b. Fantasy Draft
      i. Type order of draft teams into command line ii. Type drafted players into command line
   c. Fantasy League
      i. Given a finite and provided set of commands as well as the database of players available for league transactions (i.e. add/drop and trade), provide command line with transaction details
      ii. Query command line for league/fantasy team statistics using finite command key given